No Japanese Volunteers Says Yoshida

Tokyo, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida declared today that Japanese "cannot be permitted" to volunteer in the Korean campaign.

He made the statement during a question period in parliament.

Yoshida said the Japanese government is firm in its constitutional ban on armed forces and war.

The premier said he did not expect the Korean campaign to develop into a third world war.

Japan's police force, he added, is sufficient to insure "domestic peace and security" despite the hostilities on the nation's doorstep.

Answering a specific question, he said a strong national police force is maintained on Hokkaido, the northernmost of the four main islands, a short distance from the Russian-held Kurile Islands.

Yoshida added "the greatest concern and anxiety of the government with regard to domestic security is over Hokkaido."

The island's proximity to the Communist-held Kuriles has long bothered the Japanese, alarmed by increasing turmoil in Asia.

The premier said the Korean campaign probably would delay any Japanese peace treaty. He expressed belief that the treaty will await conclusion of hostilities.

Yoshida "retorted" previous statements that "volunteers" cannot be permitted in the Korean campaign. Under the circumstances, this was the only thing he could say on a subject of growing interest in this country.

Japan has some ships and seamen in supply lines to Korea, and her industries are working on some war contracts. But she is not involved in the fighting.

GOPs Give Slight Nod to Aid for Slavs

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The administration's calculated risk venture in offering aid to Yugoslavia got the promise of some Republican help today—with conditions.

Senator Cain (R-Wash.) reported that President Truman announced he is ready to come to an understanding with Spain and to provide economic and military assistance to that country.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) said in a separate interview he thinks any move to send food to drought-stricken Yugoslavia ought to be conditioned on an agreement by Marshal Tito to release Greek children and religious leaders he said are confined in Yugoslavia.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex.) of the senate foreign relations committee predicted early congressional approval of an administration request for authority to spend $38,000,000 in supplying additional food to the Yugoslavs. The committee scheduled closed hearings on the issue today.

Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), a committee member, told a reporter he is prepared to go along with the request purely on the basis that his county is taking a calculated risk that Yugoslavia would oppose Russian aggression in the Balkans. Although Communist Yugoslavia's government is at odds with Moscow, Smith said he thinks some sort of informal assurances from Tito on this point ought to precede further aid. The administration already has made available about $1,000,000 in economic cooperation administration (ECA) and military assistance funds to provide food for the Yugoslavs.

Cain said he thinks the amount

Home Front Unprepared for Attack

By MAX HALL
For James Marlow

Washington, Dec. 4.—(AP)—The American homeland, almost unscratched by the enemy in two world wars, is unprepared for enemy attacks in case of a third.

Therefore, with the world situation growing worse, civil defense has become a subject of red-hot activity almost overnight.

In the First World War, the enemy denied the U. S. mainland by a few acts of sabotage only.

Probably the closest approach made by German military forces occurred on July 21, 1918. Just off the Cape Cod shore, in plain view of astonished bathers on the beach, a U-boat poured shells into a string of four barges and sank them.

In the Second World War, the enemy made deeper pinpricks. On the evening of Feb. 23, 1942, while Americans listened to a fire-side chat by President Roosevelt, a Japanese submarine rose from the sea near Santa Barbara, California, and shelled an oil refinery.

In the same period, a submarine shelled the shore batteries at Astoria, Oregon. And a plane released from a submarine dropped incendiary bombs near Brookings, Oregon, in an effort to set forest fires. Other submarine-based aircraft are believed to have flown over Seattle.

Air raid scares agitated Los Angeles, San Francisco, New York and other cities—1,440 rounds of anti-aircraft ammunition were fired in Los Angeles—but there appears to be no proof that enemy planes visited any of those places.

Later in the war, in 1944 and 1945, the Japanese set thousands of bomb-laden balloons floating across the Pacific. One of them killed a woman and five children who were picnicking near Lakeview, Oregon, on May 5, 1945.

The FBI says there were no cases of enemy-directed sabotage in World War II. Eight German saboteurs were brought to Florida and Long Island by submarines in June, 1942, but they were arrested in New York and Chicago, and six of them went speedily to the electric chair.

Six months before Pearl Harbor, President Roosevelt had created the office of civilian defense (CD) by executive order.

The OCD issued arm bands for air raid wardens, and so on. It also got some unlucky publicity—something to do with fan dancing. Congress, providing $100,000,000 for the agency early in 1942, prohibited the use of the money for instruction in "physical fitness by dancers, fan dancing, street shows, theatrical performances or other public entertainments."

H. LaGuardia was the first director of the OCD. He was succeeded by James M. Landis in February 1942.

I was an air raid warden in New York City, and I remember the excitement and responsibility we felt when the city had an air raid alarm soon after Pearl Harbor.

We pinned on our armbands, rushed outdoors, and ordered people off the streets with a great sense of urgency. We had no way of knowing it was a false alarm, nor that the entire war would pass without the real thing coming.

Today this sense of urgency is returning, and it is not confined to the coastal cities. No one believes that the country could go through a third world war with only false alarms and pinpricks.

President Truman has created the federal civil defense administration (ECDA) head by Millard F. Caldwell, Jr.

The administration has asked Congress to enact a law putting this agency on a sound legal basis and giving it broad powers. There is some controversy over details, but Congress is expected to approve most of the program.

This time, the state governments will have a greater part in the civil defense set-up. Millions of volunteers must be called to service. They will need better training and more equipment than the air raid wardens of 1941. The whole population must be taught what to do in emergencies.

There is a widespread feeling, this time, that we are playing for keeps.

In 1421, approximately 100,000 lives were lost when huge sea waves burst the dikes protecting the Netherlands and destroyed 72 villages.

Involved is small and worth risking to bolster a potential friend. We must look for friends wherever we can find them," he observed.

Some foreign relations committee members said they had received reports that negotiations already are underway with Tito for release of religious prisoners and abducted Greek children.

The Yugoslav aid program was linked, meanwhile, with a proposed transfer of European ECA funds to Asia as a part of the continuing move to strengthen nations which might fight if the Russians attack.

Connally said he will lay before the committee tomorrow an administration request for authority to transfer five per cent of European funds—about $100,000,000—to use in the area around China. The ECA already had been allotted $94,000,000 by Congress for the area.

The committee chairman said he had been told that ECA plans to use only $35,000,000 of this amount now, holding the remainder in reserve. The suggestion is that the bulk of the economic aid would go to Indonesia.

"BIG THREE" IN ENGLAND—This rare photo shows King George VI of England, in naval dress, flanked by his prime minister, Clement Attlee, and opposition leader Winston Churchill, left. The three British leaders were gathered at London's Cenotaph on Remembrance Day to place wreaths on the war memorial.

ATOM SET BEATS "FISSION"—If junior is very precocious, he might go for one of these junior atomic scientist sets, demonstrated here by a couple of New York youngsters. The lab set includes a Geiger counter, a cloud chamber and a fluorescent screen to show radioactive material disintegrating.

KIDDIES SAVE, BY GUM!—A three-way combination is this bubble gum-basketball-bank put on the Christmas market by a Chicago sales firm. When you put a penny in the slot, a ball of gum rolls out onto a spring shooter inside the bank, then the "banker" must flick it into the basket. Once the basket is made, the gum rolls out for chewing, and the penny falls in for safekeeping.

IT'S IN THE BAG—All wrapped up in this compact, 18-by-36-inch bundle is a 20-man raft, complete with canopy, radar reflector, survival kits, rations, first aid supplies and all the other items needed by fliers downed at sea. Made of rubberized nylon, the life raft has passed rigid tests at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O.

OL' MAN WINTER TAKES OVER—These parked autos got a heavy white coating of ice as Chicago firemen sprinkled them while fighting a blaze in a nearby building. A temperature of two degrees below zero that caused the fast freeze was typical of the cold wave that swept across nation.

FLAG DAY IN KOREA—This ambitious Korean merchant has no door for Opportunity to knock on, but he cashes in just the same. With only a clothesline for a shop, he sells South Korean and United Nations flags in Seoul.

UNCLE SAM STEALS BIG LEAD—The United States turned out more steel in the month of October than in any previous month in history, according to the American Iron and Steel Institute. Newschart above shows the October output was more than one-third of the estimated 1950 production of Russia alone and nearly half as much as Great Britain is expected to produce this year. Steel spokesmen say the U. S. will turn out 96,000,000 net tons in 1950.

TARGET OF UN DRIVE IN KOREA—This is the number one generating station of the huge Changin Dam at Chosin Reservoir in North Korea, an electrical installation that supplies power to most of North Korea. It was in the area of this power plant and nearby ones along the Yalu River that Chinese Communists rushed after their entry into the Korean war. Much of Manchuria's power also comes from these huge North Korean installations.

Search Starts for Officer's Assaultants

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 4 —(AP)—E. J. Gresham, 26-year-old rookie state highway patrolman, was reported in a critical condition today while a search for his assaultants was concentrated in Arkansas.

Freshman was shot through the neck Saturday after he halted two men for a routine check. Jackson police had broadcast a pickup order for two men in a dirty, light gray 1930 Ford.

The patrolman radioed he was en route to Vicksburg with the men. After he failed to arrive, a highway patrol plane spotted him on a road 10 miles north of the city. He was taken to Mercy hospital at Vicksburg.

Officers blocked northern Mississippi until it was learned that the two men had escaped from the state.

The pickup order was issued when local auto dealers said two men had tried to sell the car too cheaply.

Pyongyang, a city of 800,000, fell to the Allies Oct. 20. Huge pictures of Russia's Premier Stalin and Korean Red Premier Kim Il Sung were found everywhere.

U. N. warplanes screened the withdrawal from the city with unrelenting strafing and bombing attacks on Red troop and supply concentrations to the north.

Fighters and bombers also flew in close support of hard-pressed U. N. forces in the northeast, where advance Chinese elements were reported within 15 miles of Hamhung.

With the help of their Corsair fighter-bombers, the Fifth and Seventh regiments of the U. S. First Marine division battled through Red traps to reach Hagaru on the south side of Changjin reservoir.

It was a bloody, 12-mile retreat on the west side of the big reservoir for the Leathernecks. At Hagaru they joined Doughboys of the U. S. Seventh division who escaped a Red trap on the east side of the lake. Casualties were heavy.

But their retreat through the winding canyon road back to Hamhung, 50 miles to the south, was cut off Oct. 26. Six Chinese regiments were reported occupying mountain positions for at least six miles along the pass leading from Hagaru.

Maj. Gen. Earle E. Fairbridge, commander of the U. S. Fifth air force, ordered 40 attack bombers, B-26s, to blast every ridge and road skirting the treacherous escape route.

Transport planes made hazardous flights to and from a pasture at Hagaru to remove 1,200 wounded marines and Doughboys Friday and Saturday. Far East air force headquarters described the operation as one of the "most daring" of the Korean war.

sonally risked his life many times in order to obtain news photographs. . . remarkable for clarity, action and combat color."

A couple of weeks ago, Frank was cut off with two marine battalions. Afterwards I tried to talk him into going back to Hamhung for a rest.

"Nope," he said. And that was that.

He stayed up front — with the companies and the platoons—more during the past six weeks than any other newsman or photographer I know of.

His last great photo beat was the first shot of the Changjin reservoir when the marines finally punched their way there. He got it by walking across the snowy hills with the first patrol.

Noel won his Pulitzer prize in 1943 for a picture, "water," showing a Lascar Indian in a lifeboat begging for water.

The ship was sunk in a night attack, the first reported sinking by a Japanese submarine in the Indian ocean.

He joined the Associated Press in 1937, after working for the Kansas City Star, the Oklahoma City News and the Wichita Eagle. After World War II, he covered the Mediterranean area, the Near East and Germany — until the Korean war broke out. He couldn't stay away from the biggest photo story of the year.

There's one last thing: Don't write off Pappy Noel. He has seen a lot of war and any number of tight spots. I am betting Frank will come back — probably with exclusive pictures.

ture of the discussions will be made public until:

1. Wu and Rau have communicated with their respective governments and given them a chance to ponder the views expressed.

2. President Truman and British Prime Minister Atlee, meeting in Washington tomorrow, have had a chance to study the results — if any — and decide on a common policy.

It was Rau's second meeting in three days with Wu. Cautious optimism developed here that some fruitful suggestion could result and might lead to a diplomatic solution of the Korean problem.

Diplomats were especially cheered by the fact that, following the first conference, Wu evidently received approval from Peiping to go ahead with negotiations.

There was no indication what line the talks were talking, but there was considerable speculation that a military cease-fire might be arranged which would give time for a political settlement.

Rau is expected to meet Wu again tonight at a dinner being given by the Chinese Communists by U. N. Secretary General Trygve but that probably will be only a social occasion. Representatives of Israel, Sweden and Britain have also been invited.

The American alert to the general assembly was issued by U. S. delegate Warren R. Austin after an all-Sunday conference with Republican Adviser John Foster Dulles and other top aides.

Chiropractors Want to Raise Their Fees

Little Rock, Dec. 4 —(AP)—Arkansas chiropractors have proposed something that if not unprecedented is at least unusual.

They want to more than triple the fees they pay to the state.

The Arkansas Chiropractic association proposed here yesterday that the state license fees and license renewal fees be increased from $7.50 to $25 a year.

The money would be used to enable the state board of chiropractic examiners to conduct an educational program, including periodic post graduate clinics for the profession.

The association, which held a special meeting here, also proposed a tightening of the profession's code of ethics to make "untruthful and unethical" advertising methods grounds for suspension or revocation of license.

Dr. W. O. Bedford, North Little Rock, the association president, named a committee to seek the desired legislation from the 1951 general assembly. Dr. Tony Price of Malvern was appointed chairman. Other members: Drs. Gordon Lynch, North Little Rock; F. H. Seubold, Fort Smith; Ralph McBryde, Pine Bluff, and L. H. Smith, Hot Springs.

Free Press Is Hope of a Free World Says Editor

Memphis, Dec. 4 —(AP)—Editor Frank Alghren told Arkansas newsmen here yesterday that a free press is the hope of a free world.

Speaking at a meeting of the Arkansas Association of the Associated Press, the Memphis Commercial Appeal editor said:

"We must see to it that the cheerless people of the police states know the true conditions as they exist in the world today that they may have hope and determination to revive."

Alghren was host to the meeting, which was the first that Arkansas editors and publishers have held on Tennessee soil. The some

Dear Dorothy Dix: Can you help a very unhappy woman? I am 35 years old with three small children. My husband is a good man and a good provider, but he isn't at all lively and gay. After work he just sits down and reads the newspaper while I love to go out dancing. Last week I went to a dance with a friend and met a fellow of 25 with whom I have fallen violently in love. He has no job, but I could always get my old one back at my former office. He wants me to run away with him and I am tempted to do so. Do you think I could be happy with him away from my babies? Please help me. I don't know which way to turn.

Answer: When a married woman with a good husband, a good home and children gets a brainstorm that makes her even contemplate throwing them in the discard for a boy without a penny to his name, she needs to have her head examined.

Consider What You'd Lose

Put your husband and children and home and place in society and your comfortable living on the scales and weigh them against disgrace, poverty, the loss of your children with only the compensation of having somebody to dance with. And without money you can't even dance much. Nor will you feel much like dancing if you have to support your husband and come home dog tired at night.

Your one complaint against your husband is that he doesn't want to step out of nights. It has always seemed to me that that is the least fault that a husband can possibly have, and that it is one upon which a wife should look with a very lenient eye because the reason it is hard to pry him out of his easy-chair of an evening is because he has worked so hard all day trying to make money for her that he is exhausted.

And the children. The babies. Believe me, if you forsake them you will never know one single moment's happiness. No man's love will compensate you for the love of your children.

If you run off with this man you will lie awake at night wondering who is taking care of them wondering if they are covered up in their sleep, wondering if they miss you, and your soul will sick with you as you know that they will grow up to be ashamed of

McMath Plans to Ask for New Construction

Little Rock, Dec. 4 —(AP)—Governor McMath plans to ask the Arkansas legislature to authorize a $24,000,000 construction program. It would include complete rebuilding of the state hospital (total cost $12,000,000) the long planned medical center ($9,000,000) and 19 additional national guard armories $300,000.

McMath, who said he'd officially broach the projects in his second-term inaugural speech next month, said the state wouldn't have to furnish the money.

75 delegates voted to hold the next session in Hot Springs, with the date to be determined later.

you. Don't commit this criminal folly, I beg of you.

Dear Miss Dix: What hope is there for widows? I am 45. Have two fine sons, working their way through college, and I have a job, so I am better off than many. But in a few years, two or three probably, my sons will be gone about the business of life for themselves and what, then, is there in life for me and for the thousands of women like me? There is a small chance for us to marry and establish homes again because men prefer young wives. Can you offer any cheer to widows in general? There are so many of us.

M.D.G.

Answer: There are, but few of them take such a pessimist view of the lot of the widow as you do. Most of them are having a grand time being free and independent and doing all the things they could not do when they were tied down by a husband and young children.

No one would minimize the grief that a woman feels in the loss of a husband whom she has really loved and who has been an ideal mate to her. That leaves a wound in her heart that will never cease to ache, but nursing a sorrow that cannot be cured and mourning over a loss that cannot be filled does not bring back our dead, nor restore our happiness. It only weakens us and makes us less able to fight our battles of life.

So the brave thing to do is to lock your grief away. Realize that the part of your life to which that belongs is gone forever, but that you have many years before you in which you can be happy and find life good and amusing if you will only make it so. Happiness doesn't drop into many of our laps. We have to go out and find it, but our search is nearly always successful if we hunt hard enough.

more popular than girls who are not so attractive. I don't want to wear glasses, but I don't know how to get rid of them. Should I wear them or should I discard them? School hours and not at all well?

Answer: Wear your glasses. Have nothing to do with your larity or lack of it. Modern girls are not disgracing. Give a pliant expression and up an otherwise dull face. (Released by The Bell System Inc.)

Cliff dwellings in New Mexico were occupied by Indians until about 350 years ago, or six decades after the arrival of the first Spanish explorers in the region.

lady — well, that was too much." Miss Stuart said she recalled the incident "very definitely."

"I do not hesitate to say that he has not good manners," she said. "That was the reason I quit. I couldn't take it any longer."

He wouldn't put up with such humiliation. He is completely overbearing and shoots off his mouth."

She said James H. Sheldon, who sometimes calls himself "professor" and operates Lipschutz's non-sectarian anti-Nazi League, was subjected to "frightfully rude" treatment when Sheldon called at the office of the society to ask Lipschutz to meet the league's payroll.

Sheldon is "director" of the league which interlocks with the society. He served briefly at Boston university as "visiting assistant professor" and later as "instructor."

During the recent New York mayoralty campaign, Sheldon's name was signed to a shockingly dishonest "scare" advertisement charging that "the underworld and the tammany totalitarians, practically taking their campaign instructions from the infamous goebbels, have sacrilegiously desecrated some holy places by whispering terrible untruths to terrify the Jewish voters."

"These Nazi-minded supporters of political machines should be repudiated by the Jewish people who still remember and tremble at the thought of the horrible crematories of Dachau and Buchenwald," the ad said further.

This attempt to create a scare of crematories in New York was the more vicious because the principal backer of this "Nazi-minded political machine" was David Dubinsky, the president of the garment workers' union, one of the foremost political and financial backers of the state of Israel.

Through his so-called liberal party, a subsidiary of the union, Dubinsky tried to elect Judge Ferdinand Pecora.

Sheldon's league maintains a staff of male and female fly-cops to win the confidence of American citizens, trap them into unwary statements, and then denounce them as anti-semites.

Mahan and Fluegge said Miss Davis showed them carbon copies of letters to Molotov, Russia, and Hukov, of Soviet.

"Anti-American soviet journalist," they said these letters praised the Russian war effort, but completely ignored the American effort. Both men said the letters were sent out without their knowledge.

Mahan said Lipschutz spoke of Ehrenberg as a personal friend. He said there was another letter to a member of the French delegation to the United Nations "which we thought should have gone to a member of the American delegation."

Mahan, Fluegge and Eliot demanded that Lipschutz dismiss the person who had written these and other letters. This was in 1946. It appears the management was mostly in Lipschutz's hands.

The Buchanan committee of congress, by deliberate act of Lipschutz to take any notice of either of his organizations when it was pounding several pro-American organizations last summer.

A flood in the Ohio River valley in 1913 accounted for the loss of 400 lives and 100,000,000 in damage to property.

13 Lucky Guys

FRANK R. ADAMS

COPY. 1950 BY MRS. SERVICE, INC.

THE BERRY: Twelve talented men and a beautiful woman, all war casualties. And themselves in Westwood, where all but one had lived before they were killed. One of the squad, Carl Peterson, goes to his wife, Kirsten, and finds her taking her own life by hanging from a beam. Carl holds her in his arms, then a window is broken by boys playing baseball nearby. Carl's arms are empty.

house open and had turned off the gas. By that time Kirsten was beginning to regain consciousness. She was trying to struggle to a sitting position.

"Stay where you are, girlie," counseled the policeman. "Be quiet and you'll be all right in a half hour."

"You'd better call a doctor," suggested Carl. "She ought to have medical attention."

"The cop knows his stuff. He'll take care of her okay, soldier."

CARL turned to look at the Medical Corps captain who hadn't been there a moment before. The officer smiled at him. "You asked for a doctor so I showed up. But I came principally to take care of you. I've never lost a husband yet, if I may be permitted to repeat one of the corniest cracks of my profession."

"Why didn't you let me go?" Kirsten moaned, her face still sideways on the table top. She didn't know yet what had happened or to whom she was talking.

"You can't do whatever it was you were trying to do," the policeman explained. "It's against the law. And furthermore I had nothing to do with stopping you anyway. It was a baseball."

That made very little sense to a mind which was still muffled in the cotton wool of oblivion. Kirsten didn't try to understand. She merely whispered, "Carl, darling, I've lost you again."

The old policeman was looking at her with more compassion than officers of the law are supposed to express and he talked to her soothingly.

"I've seen hundreds of people who felt like you do and they always change their minds when God gives 'em a chance. I'll tell you what Father Mahoney once said to me on this very subject when I had put a bullet through my hat mistakin' it for my head, an error I can't account for to this day."

The Army doctor chuckled. "This cop knows his psychology better than they teach it in the medical schools."

The policeman continued: "What happened to me, missin' my brains that way, was probably a miracle just like the baseball which busted your window. I've never taken a drink since. And I've lived a very useful life, if I do say it myself, just like you're goin' to. You have to go right on doin' your job whatever it is. When a miracle happens to anybody it's a sign there is something they still have to do, something important that the Almighty needs 'em for. Father Mahoney says that folks who are livin' on borrowed time like you and me are especially useful to God because He can ask 'em to do things that are too dangerous for regular people."

WHILE he was talking the officer had found the baseball. With it in his hand he went to the window. "Hey, kids, come and get your ball—all but you, Willie. You run over to our house and bring back mother. Tell her I need a strong woman who is a good cook, a marvelous nurse and is as beautiful as a movie star. That ought to fetch her."

"Everything," declared the Army officer, "seems to be under control, soldier. We can leave now."

"I think I'll stay, sir. She's my wife and I'd like to be with her."

"Okay, son, but don't you worry. She's going to be all right. She won't do anything like that again; not if she believes what the cop told her and she will. He convinced me."

Slowly the medical officer began to fade away into the air, the way he had done when Carl, Eddie and the rest of the boys in the squad had first met him at the beach. Presently the captain wasn't there—to Carl, that is, for he had never been there at all to the policeman, Kirsten herself had only been aware of Carl for the moment or two when she stood between life and death.

The AIC season opens tomorrow night when Arkansas college meets Arkansas State at Jonesboro. They'll be two more conference engagements and at least six non-conference tilts before the week ends.

The Arkansas Gazette reported in its Sunday morning edition that a poll of AIC coaches showed defending champion Tech the almost unanimous choice to repeat as titlist.

Everybody picked Tech except Coach Elmer Smith of Magnolia A. and M. Smith named no one, saying it was too early for that kind of speculating.

Besides tomorrow night's game, Tech is involved in both the other AIC games this week. The Wonder Boys meet Hendrix at Conway Thursday, and Arkansas A. and M. at Monticello Saturday.

In the non-conference engagements, Magnolia A. and M. will entertain McNeese Junior college Thursday and Friday. On Friday Arkansas state will take on Mississippi State at Jonesboro; State Teachers will hold its second game with non-conference Beebe Junior college at Beebe, and Arkansas college will meet Bethel at McKenzie, Tenn.

Last week's scores all non-conference included: University of Arkansas 50, Tech 45.

Navy Seeking a Softer Schedule

Philadelphia, Dec. 4 — (AP) — Navy accented the college football's acclaim today for its stunning 14-2 conquest of mighty Army but remained firm in its determination to soften future schedules.

"This victory, pleasant as it was, will have no effect on our little de-emphasis program," said Capt. Howard Caldwell, athletic director of the Annapolis academy.

"We simply can't go on playing such a back-breaking schedule year-in and year-out. It's suicidal."

Navy already has cancelled its 1952-53 home-and-home agreement with Ohio State. It will play Rice next year in Houston and has asked the Southwest school to drop the 1952 game at Baltimore.

"This thing of playing Southern California one week, then Penn and then a team like Tulane — why, the boys never get a chance to heal their bruises between knocks," said Caldwell.

"We would like to keep some of the tough teams — Notre Dame, certainly, and possibly Penn and Princeton. But we'd like to mix in a few softer spots here and there."

Navy officials feel that the Mid-dies, who won only three of their nine games, might have had an excellent season if they hadn't bitten off more schedule than they could chew.

"I think one of the big reasons that we beat Army is that we had two full weeks to get ready," said Eddie Erdelatz, moon-faced, 36-year-old coach of the future admirals. "With the same type of preparation I think we might have won some other games we lost."

Navy's convincing triumph in Philadelphia's Municipal stadium Saturday, snapping Army's 28-game unbeaten streak, left baffled experts clawing for explanations.

Army's Coach Earl Redd Black accepted the setback without excuses and apparently without surprise.

"I've said all along Navy was due to explode against somebody," he said. "They have excellent personnel — rugged and hungry to win. They just kicked the heck out of us, that's all."

There was no question about that. Navy's fierce-charging line limited the powerful Cadets to 27 yards rushing and five first downs. Army had scoring opportunities—two within the ten yard line in the final five minutes — but they were snuffed out by Navy's alert defenders.

Pontiac Uses Newspaper Advertising

Pontiac Motor Division, which this year celebrates its Silver Anniversary, will announce its 1951 models with the greatest and most diversified advertising campaign in its 25 year history, according to H. J. Klingler, general manager of Pontiac Motor Division.

Newspapers again will form the backbone of the Pontiac announcement campaign with top-size advertisements, in many cases full pages, in 4,000 daily and weekly newspapers. These will be followed by more large semi-announcement type advertisements.

Double and full page announcements will appear in The Saturday Evening Post, Life, Time, Collier's, Newsweek, The New Yorker, U. S. News, Holiday, Sports Afield, Outdoor Life, Field and Stream, Country Gentleman, Successful Farming and Progressive Farmer.

Pre-announcement and announcement radio spots will be aired five times daily over 1,125 stations and 96 leading television stations will carry an average of three spots daily during the same period. Radio and TV spots - so successful in Pontiac's case last year - again will feature famous personalities, commentators, actresses and news analysts, including John Daly, John Kennedy, Kyle MacDonnell, Arlene Francis, Leland Stowe, Harry Conover, John W. Vandercorn, Wilbur Shaw and John Cameron Swayze.

A strikingly beautiful announcement poster, "Twenty-fifth Year... More Beautiful Than Ever," by Bradshaw Crandall will appear on 14,000 outdoor boards.

Fish-eye view of an engineer's problem... determining the limits of a new underwater gas field is a lot different from an on-land job. The derrick can't very well be moved; so special methods are used to drill a deviated hole to the desired position several thousand feet down.

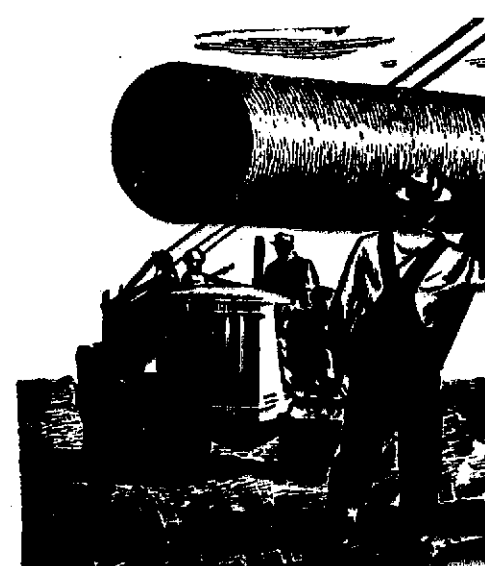

It's a long swim to land... Finding natural gas underwater is tough enough, but getting it to the Inch Lines to serve the nation is tougher still. The men who lay pipe lines under the sea are pioneers in a new science.

Like a lighthouse in the sea... is the huge rotary drilling rig on its platform seven miles off the coast of Texas. On board the big platform tender, a converted LST, are quarters for the drilling crew, fuel for the Diesel engines, tanks of special muds for lubricating the drilling bits, and thousands of feet of steel drill pipe and casing.

Men and machines conquer Gulf of Mexico to provide fuel for the future

Texas Eastern, through its subsidiary production company, recently became the first natural gas company to engage in underwater exploration for new reserves of gas. With some fields already found, geologists view the Gulf as this country's greatest future source of essential natural gas and petroleum. Here in pictures is the story of the sea search for gas—gas which the Inch Lines hope to carry in future years.
